

ROUTE HOME FAMILY HOUSE

The project is based on a concept of a modern alpine house, which should express the investor's philosophy of life: living in accordance with nature. Architectural design was influenced by the idea of mimicry. Roof design mimics the surrounding hills with grape orchards rows. The design stems from the premise - roof as the essence of the house. The house becomes a meandering floating roof consisting of three units. Between individual units, atriums are formed. The house has three functional units: garage (service), living area and sleeping area. The program is logically arranged from the public on the east side to the more private on the west side.
